Unleashing the Power Within

During the panel, a group of visually impaired athletes and past campers shared their inspiring experiences and discussed their self-advocacy journeys. Chris highlighted his achievements in sailing, emphasizing the importance of advocating for oneself to achieve success. Mindy expressed her pride in discovering goalball later in life and encouraged others to chase their dreams fearlessly. Megan, who transitioned from athlete to coach, emphasized the significance of adaptability and trying new things, exemplified by her participation in an Ironman event during the pandemic. Peter discovered a love for cycling at camp and stressed the value of continuous learning. Max shared his story of losing most of his sight and finding hope through adaptive sports, particularly blind hockey. Ronan, a wrestler, emphasized the importance of perseverance and never giving up, regardless of the challenges faced. The panel served as a powerful testament to the resilience and determination of visually impaired individuals in pursuing their passions and advocating for themselves.
